ASTON MARTIN TO BROADCAST UPDATES ON TWITTER

Aston Martin Racing will broadcast regular updates and news throughout the Le Mans Series season, as well as the Le Mans 24 Hours itself, via the online community Twitter.

Twitter currently receives around 55 million monthly visits, counting US President Barack Obama amongst its many fans.

As well as regular updates from the track and the pits, Twitter will carry all the latest news and views from the famous 007 and 009 cars. The Twitter feed will commence from Saturday at the opening Le Mans Series round in Barcelona this weekend.

To follow Aston Martin Racing on Twitter, please visit www.twitter.com and choose to follow AMRLEMANS09

Aston Martin also has a Facebook page, which contains more news and insider perspectives from the manufacturer. To become a friend of Aston Martin and Aston Martin Racing, please log onto www.facebook.com and type in 'Aston Martin' or 'Aston Martin Racing' as a search term.
